the forward adapted presence on Romanian territory. During the meeting with the Turkish defence minister, Fikri Işik, the two officials agreed on the importance of concentrating common efforts on implementing allied decisions in the near future, so that concrete results are obtained by the defence ministerial of October this year.

Defence minister Mihnea Motoc participated in a working dinner along the other allied defence ministers. They talked of an enhanced forward presence on NATO Eastern Flank, the cooperation framework in the southern part of the Alliance and allied support for NATO partners by an efficient use of the Initiative for Defence Capacity Building, with a view to projecting stability and security. Another topic on the Summit agenda was finding the ways to make a functional evaluation of the allied command structure, as an orientation element for the future reflection process on this matter.

The Romanian defence minister spoke of specific initiatives to achieve an adapted forward presence on the southern area on NATO Eastern Flank. The initiative would consist in creating a multinational brigade in Romania, affiliated to the headquarters Multinational Division South-East and consolidating air and naval presence in the region, by means of dedicated measures. He also pointed out the important role played by the allied military authorities in the process and encouraged the participation of the allies with concrete contributions to the specific implementation of tFP over the next period of time.

Minister Motoc also pointed out the importance of the allied initiative to consolidate the defence capacities of third parties, as a key-instrument of NATO to the efforts of the international community to project stability beyond NATO borders. He also restated Romania's commitment to cooperate with the Republic of Moldova, Georgia and Ukraine and to use efficiently the current cooperation mechanisms with the partner states of NATO.

Defence Minister's Meeting with General Denis Mercier, Commander, Allied Command Transformation

While at NATO Summit in Warsaw, the Minister of National Defence, Mihnea Motoc, had a meeting with General Denis Mercier, Commander of the Allied Command Transformation (ACT). The meeting was attended also by the chief of General Staff, General Nicolae Ciucă.

They discussed aspects of ACT support for the conceptual development of cooperation between the maritime and air components of the forward allied presence in the region, to the south of countering current and future threats to the security environment.

Interoperability, as a distinct field, got official recognition at the last NATO Summit in Wales, in 2014, when the Alliance launched the initiative, in this format, as an Interoperability Platform.

In his speech, the Romanian defence minister was in favor of reaching interoperability by the partners as a priority for the future cooperation with the Alliance, pointing out in this respect, the importance of cooperation with the Republic of Moldova, Georgia and Ukraine. He stressed that maintaining and consolidating this cooperation in terms of crises management and countering threats to our security and stability is essential for enhancing NATO capacity in general.

At the same time, minister Motoc mentioned the need to strengthen NATO's role in projecting stability to the east and south of the Alliance, through specific mechanisms of support offered to the partners in these regions, for the development of the crises management capabilities and national resilience in general.
